NAVY AVIATION FUTURE IN BALANCE

NAVAL INQUIRY BOARD ARRIVES AT SCENE OF WRECK; DEATH TOLL 14

POLICY REGARDING FUTURE AIR COURSE DOMINANT QUESTION

Wilbur Promises No Change For Present In Air Navigation

Washington, Sept. 4.—The future aviation policy of the navy hangs in the balance as a result of the destruction of the dirigible Shenandoah coming on the heels of the failure of naval sea planes to fly to Hawaii.

The big question in naval circles here today was concerned with the attitude which the navy would take toward aircraft development and operation—whether the wrecking of the Shenandoah would mark the end of the hopes of the navy's aerial navigators for more and greater lighter than air ships or whether a narrowing of aerial activities would now be in order until further experimentation succeeds in safeguarding the men who go aloft.

For the present Secretary of the Navy Wilbur declares that there will be no change in aviation policy, but there are indications that tentative plans are already being made to reduce the activities of the bureau of aeronautics to a minimum, not only as a means of saving the lives of naval aviators, but in the interests of economy. Among the proposals under consideration is for the closing and virtual abandonment of the naval air station at Lakehurst, home port of the wrecked Shenandoah, and the placing out of commission of the dirigible Los Angeles, which the United States obtained from Germany.

REGGIE VANDERBILT SUDDENLY CALLED BY DEATH EARLY FRIDAY

Scion of Wealthy Family Is Victim of Heart Attack

Newport, R. I., Sept. 4.—Reginald C. Vanderbilt, scion of the famous Vanderbilt family and one of the country's wealthiest men, died suddenly of heart failure at his summer home, Sandy Point Farm in the town of Portsmouth today.

Mrs. Vanderbilt, who was Gloria Morgan, and her mother, Mrs. Harry Hays Morgan, were in New York preparing to sail on Saturday for South America to visit Mr. Morgan who is in the foreign service.

"Reggie" Vanderbilt, leader of Newport horse shows and widely known throughout the country, was the son of the late Cornelius Vanderbilt and Mrs. Vanderbilt, the mother, has a summer home here. His sister is Countess Szechenyi.

Gloria Morgan and Vanderbilt were married four years ago. It was a second marriage for Vanderbilt. His first wife, formerly Miss Kathleen Neilson, obtained a divorce and later re-married, now being Mrs. Sydney Jones Colford, Jr.

Vanderbilt has been in good health and the sudden heart attack which caused his death came without warning.

News of the death shocked the summer colony here, of which he was a prominent member.

LIVESTOCK DAY AT STATE FAIR BRINGS CROWD; QUEEN NAMED

Disqualify First Miss Ohio For Giving Wrong Age

Columbus, Ohio, Sept. 4.—"Livestock day" opened at the state fair this morning with every indication of another day of torrid weather.

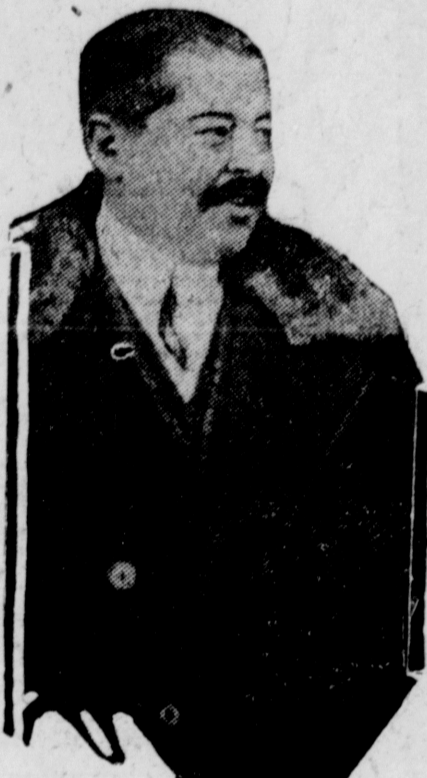

Title of "Miss Ohio" is held today by Miss Elarka Towne, 18, Conneaut. The title was transferred to Miss Towne by judges at the state fair Thursday night after receiving word from Armand T. Nichols, director, general of the parent at Atlantic City, N. J., that Miss Dolores Oakes, Mount Vernon, was disqualified on the ground that she "misrepresented her age."

The title was awarded to Miss Oakes at the state fair here last Monday night. Judges who selected Miss Towne are:

D. A. Acklin, Toledo, L. B. Palmer, Pataskala, and Mrs. W. L. Bargar, Urbana. It was announced that, besides being honored as "Miss Ohio" during the remainder of the state fair Miss Towne may go to Atlantic City and compete in the young women's beauty contest.

Of the 32,353 persons who visited the state fair Thursday, 25 were given medical treatment, due to heat prostration. None of the cases were serious it was stated.

DIES SUDDENLY

Reginald C. Vanderbilt, scion of the famous Vanderbilt family, died suddenly of heart failure Friday morning at his summer home, Portsmouth, R. I.

ARREST EXPECTED TO CLEAR LONG SERIES OF FORGERIES HERE

Tom Gayles In Custody After Nine Checks Recovered

Arrest of Tom Gayles, 50, colored, is expected to clear up a series of check forgeries which victimized a number of Xenia merchants, authorities say.

Gayles was arrested Thursday night after police and the sheriff's office had co-operated on the case for three weeks in the effort to find the offender who had passed a number of worthless checks.

He is locked up in the County Jail while Chief Deputy Sheriff John Baughn holds nine checks, said to be forgeries, which will be used against Gayles when he is arraigned. Arraignment will probably be sometime Friday.

The check victims and the amount of each, follow: Mendenhall and Swindler, butcher shop, $14; Henry Norckauer, grocer, $12; Stiles Coal Company, $15; G. W. Anderson, $12.50; D. E. Watt, $12; F. McGough, $7.50; Kennedy Shoe Store, $15; Sample Store, $15; and T. C. James and Son, grocery, $14.50. In each case Gayles bought merchandise and then received change in cash for the balance of the amount.

Forgeries were committed, authorities say, on a different person on each check. The name of Fred Jones was forged to the check passed on the Stiles Company, but authorities do not believe the forgery was committed on Patrolman Fred Jones, who was one of the arresting officers.

Chief Deputy Sheriff Baughn and Chief of Police M. E. Graham worked on the case three weeks before they were confident Gayles had committed the forgeries. When the identity became certain Patrolman George Robinson, who knew Gayles, was obtained to identify him and make the arrest. Patrolmen Fred Jones and Ed Craig accompanied him and took Gayles into custody.

Gayles was identified Friday morning by several merchants who were his victims. Chief Graham says Gayles is also wanted in Dayton for several forgeries, but will be kept here and tried on the local cases. The chief says Gayles has a police record and served term in the penitentiary for a holdup five years ago.

COOLIDGE PLANS BETTER ENFORCEMENT

CO-ORDINATING ALL ACTIVITIES PROGRAM MADE BY PRESIDENT

War Council On Law Enforcement May Be Formed Soon

Washington, Sept. 4.—Far reaching plans to bring about more effective enforcement not only of the Volstead Act, but all other laws of the United States, are under study by President Coolidge.

With the announcement at the treasury today that orders would be issued authorizing immigration inspectors and customs agents to work jointly in the campaign against smuggling and smugglers, it became known that this move is the beginning of a co-ordination of all federal law enforcement activities.

President Coolidge has not yet sanctioned the new program for law enforcement, but is understood to be giving its details careful consideration.

Features of the plan already approved by several members of the president's cabinet, include:

1.—Detailing of a high government official co-ordinator of law enforcement. General L. C. Andrews, assistant secretary of the treasury, has been suggested for the post.

2.—Establishment of a law enforcement "war council" including officials of the treasury, justice, labor, agricultural, commerce, state and other departments.

3.—Organization of a wall of arms and men around the country's borders made up of agents of all law enforcement agencies now operating, independently.

4.—Co-ordination of operation of all enforcement agencies both on land and sea.

President Coolidge, it was understood, will not issue the executive order necessary to put the plan into operation until he is convinced that all department heads are in agreement as to essential features.

At the treasury, however, it was stated that an executive order co-ordinating the activities of customs and immigration agents on a hundred mile sector of the Canadian border in the vicinity of Detroit will be forthcoming.

Backers of the program are considering the advisability of legislation that would create the new office of law enforcement co-ordinator and outline his duties.

Agencies which it is proposed to co-ordinate include the coastguard, customs service, prohibition unit, immigration service, consular agents, navigation inspectors, agents of the department of justice, certain agricultural agents and others.

REPORT MINERS DEAD

Tokio, Sept. 4.—One hundred and fifty miners were reported to have been killed in an explosion at the Teihaka coal mine at Meijo Korea.

CAN YOU BEAT IT?

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 4.—A suit for $5 has been started in federal court here. The Big Four Railroad is seeking to recover the $5 as an undercharge on freight on a carload of onions with interest from September 10, 1922. Gas, Bloom and Company, commission merchants here are the defendants.

This is the smallest amount ever sought in a suit in federal court here according to George Hayes, court crier. Mr. Hayes has been court crier for a half a century.

The petition states that the freight should have been $60 instead of $55.

Uncle Sam Gets Millions in Taxes

Have: GALLIA CURCI, DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS & GLORIA SWANSON. Also: PAYNE WHITNEY, A. W. MELLON & R. B. MELLON.

Taxes running into seven figures were paid the U. S. income returns show. Galli Curci parted with $24,588.65; Doug Fairbanks contributed $182,190; Gloria Swanson wrote a check for $57,075; Payne Whitney, New York financier, chipped in with $1,676,599; Secretary Mellon gave up $882,609.25, and his brother, R. B. Mellon, charged off $1,180,699.54.

XENIAN IN NAVY FRIEND OF VICTIM OF DIRIGIBLE DISASTER THURSDAY

Horror of the disaster of the Shenandoah, giant dirigible, near Zanesville, early Thursday, impressed one Xenia family with particular force.

Lieutenant Warner Bigger, son of Mrs. Jacob Baldwin, West Third Street, who is now in temporary command of the U. S. S. Patoka was a personal friend of Commander Zachary Lansdowne, Greenville, O., who had charge of the "daughter of the skies" and who, with twelve others, was killed when the dirigible was wrecked.

The U. S. S. Patoka, on which Lieutenant Bigger is stationed, is the only warship in the harbor and caused the heavy tension on the girders, which the construction of the big boat would not meet satisfactorily.

Lieutenant T. Hendley, who was in charge of the survivors, said that in his opinion the disaster was brought about by "unforeseen circumstances."

"No one is to blame," he said. "It was probably due to a cross wave which struck us in the center when we were in a warm air current. This caused three inflated bags to burst."

Philadelphia, Sept. 4.—Destruction of the giant dirigible Shenandoah was caused primarily by the expansion of helium in the great gas bags.

This was the opinion of some of the survivors of the Ohio disaster, expressed early today when they passed through this city on their way to Lakehurst, N. J., the home of the Shenandoah.

During a brief stop at the North

Philadelphia station John H. Collier, aviation chief rigger, whose home is in Moscow, Idaho, said that in his opinion a warm current of air through which the ship passed brought about an expansion of helium and caused the heavy tension on the girders.

The U. S. S. Patoka is now anchored at Lakehurst, the headquarters of the dirigible, and when Lieutenant Bigger heard of the flight of the airship to Missouri he asked Commander Lansdowne if the ship would pass over Xenia, his former home.

Commander Lansdowne declared "he certainly would" and that the flight would be in the daytime, enabling members of Lieutenant Bigger's family and friends to view the giant ship.

Members of the Baldwin family anxiously awaited a sight of the airship early Thursday and Mrs. R. C. Jewell, Lieutenant Bigger's sister, had gone into the cupola of the Court House in order to get a better view of the dirigible.

Their waiting was dispelled with news that the Shenandoah had met with the accident and the loss of her crew.

EXPANDING HELIUM GAS OR LIGHTNING BLAMED BY SURVIVORS FOR DISASTER

Suggests Warm Air Current Caused Expansion—Bag Was In Midst of Thunderstorm Member of Crew Relates On Way to Lakehurst

Philadelphia, Sept. 4.—Destruction of the giant dirigible Shenandoah was caused primarily by the expansion of helium in the great gas bags.

This was the opinion of some of the survivors of the Ohio disaster, expressed early today when they passed through this city on their way to Lakehurst, N. J., the home of the Shenandoah.

During a brief stop at the North

Philadelphia station John H. Collier, aviation chief rigger, whose home is in Moscow, Idaho, said that in his opinion a warm current of air through which the ship passed brought about an expansion of helium and caused the heavy tension on the girders.

The U. S. S. Patoka is now anchored at Lakehurst, the headquarters of the dirigible, and when Lieutenant Bigger heard of the flight of the airship to Missouri he asked Commander Lansdowne if the ship would pass over Xenia, his former home.

Commander Lansdowne declared "he certainly would" and that the flight would be in the daytime, enabling members of Lieutenant Bigger's family and friends to view the giant ship.

Members of the Baldwin family anxiously awaited a sight of the airship early Thursday and Mrs. R. C. Jewell, Lieutenant Bigger's sister, had gone into the cupola of the Court House in order to get a better view of the dirigible.

Their waiting was dispelled with news that the Shenandoah had met with the accident and the loss of her crew.

Lieutenant T. Hendley, who was in charge of the survivors, said that in his opinion the disaster was brought about by "unforeseen circumstances."

"No one is to blame," he said. "It was probably due to a cross wave which struck us in the center when we were in a warm air current. This caused three inflated bags to burst."

Philadelphia, Sept. 4.—Commander Weyerbacher's theory that a lightning bolt was responsible for the crash of the Shenandoah whose construction Weyerbacher superintended, apparently received some substantiation in the accounts of nineteen survivors of the ill-fated craft. The men were due at the Philadelphia navy yard early today, after passing through Pittsburgh late last night.

Although the navy department asserted that lightning flashes were almost incessant during the storm.

"The storm was at its height just before dawn," said Walter Johnson, of Minneapolis, chief machinist's mate. "We made absolutely no headway against the gale although we had all four motors running."

Looting of Shenandoah Wreckage By Souvenir Hunters Handicaps Investigation—Red Cross Takes Charge—Bodies To Be Sent To Homes.

Caldwell, Ohio, Sept. 4.—With the arrival of Commander Jacob Klein, head of the naval board of inquiry, appointed to determine the causes of the wrecking of the dirigible Shenandoah yesterday, the official inquiry was begun at once.

Commander Klein was accompanied by other members of the board and secret service agents and other government representatives.

One of the first concerns of the government, it was learned would be the recovery of the log book of the dirigible, believed to have been taken by some one of the thousands of souvenir hunters who swarmed over the scene of the great disaster yesterday.

A truck load of loot had already been recovered today, but the valuable book was still missing.

Secret service agents were working upon rumors which spread rapidly today that bodies of the fourteen victims were looted of money, watches and jewelry before they reached the undertakers' rooms in Belle Valley.

United States regulars were guarding the wreckage of the big ship today to prevent further vandalism.

Caldwell, Ohio, Sept. 4.—While the gallant dead of the Shenandoah lay in peace at Belle Valley, five miles east of here, guarded by members of the American Legion, the state was being set here today for a military board of inquiry to officially determine the cause of their deaths.

Commander Jacob Klein, of Cincinnati, was to be present.

In the meantime arrangements were being completed at Belle Valley for the mournful journey of the dead to their last resting places. Undertaker C. A. Dye, assisted by six other undertakers, worked throughout the night preparing the fourteen bodies for shipment. A truck load of caskets along with 13 of his comrades," the message stated. "I thought it would help you to know that the Red Cross saw that your son's body, as well as those of the others, was being tenderly cared for in death. Our heartfelt sympathy goes out to you and all his dear ones."

Similar messages went to the relatives of other victims.

Miss Lyon also sent telegrams, dictated to her by the survivors. These went to relieve the anxiety of their families.

The following report on the disaster was sent by the Red Cross at Cambridge, Ohio, to Robert E. Brody, assistant to the vice chairman, American Red Cross at Washington, D. C.: "Total number of dead 14; injured 2; bruised 20; uninjured 7. Personally viewed and touched the bodies of 14

WILBUR DENIES CHARGES OF WIDOW

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—Charges of the widow of Lieut. Commander Zachary Lansdowne that he had opposed the ill-fated flight of the Shenandoah to the west were denied at the navy department today.

Officials said that the promised trip to middle western cities was postponed from July to September in the belief that weather conditions would be more favorable later, but that Lansdowne selected his own time for starting.

"Commander Lansdowne's judgment," said Secretary of the Navy Wilbur, "was that it would be safe to make the flight when he did. The navy department would have never permitted the ship to go out against the judgment of the commanding officer, or if he had registered a protest against the trip."

arrived from Columbus during the night.

Dye stated that he expected to receive orders this forenoon from Washington relative to the shipping of the bodies.

"I believe that the remains of all victims from the middle west will be sent directly to their homes," Dye said. "I think that Commander Zachary Lansdowne's body will be sent to Greenville, Ohio."

The Caldwell, Ohio, American Legion Post No. 252, was receiving much favorable comment today for the way its members rose to the emergency.

The legionnaires were the first to rush out to the rescue of the victims. They posted themselves as guards around the wrecked remains of the Shenandoah after souvenir hunters attacked the corpse of the big dirigible.

They acted as traffic officers and handled the enormous crowds of sightseers. They stood guard over the Shenandoah's dead.

The legionnaires guarding the wrecked sections of the Shenandoah were relieved early today by regular United States army soldiers from Fort Hayes, the United States army post at Columbus, Ohio. The gentle hand of the Red Cross sought today to assuage the grief of the families of those who died with the giant airship.

Miss Emma F. Lyon, of Ironton, O., executive secretary of the Guernsey County chapter of the American Red Cross at Cambridge, wired to the nearest relatives of all the victims that their loved ones were tenderly cared for in death. Her first message went to Mrs. Betsy Ross Lansdowne, mother of Commander Lansdowne, at Greenville, Ohio.

"I, personally, viewed and touched the body of your dear son in the morgue at Belle Valley, near here, men. Several mangled about face, head and chest, almost beyond recognition. Bodies being tenderly cared for in morgue at Belle Valley, near Caldwell, by seven undertakers from Marietta, Belle Valley and Cambridge. Injured two were taken to Marietta hospital. One man in care of physician at Caldwell.

"We are sending night messages to each dead man's home whose loved ones will know the Red Cross saw every possible attention. Marietta Red Cross, Cambridge Red Cross and Caldwell Red Cross and American Legion stand united to render every service necessary. We have wired messages to the families of several survivors. Those who escaped are in a highly nervous state as a result of their terrible experience."

SEARCH FOR MISSING NAVAL PLANE IN VAIN

San Francisco, Sept. 4.—Despite the concentration of practically the entire present naval strength of the Pacific in Hawaiian waters as a searching party, another night passed without news of Commander John Rodgers and his gallant crew who named the giant naval seaplane PN-9 number one, in its attempted California to Hawaii flight.

As more than sixty hours passed without trace of the missing plane forced down 300 miles off the Hawaiian island when her gasoline supply ran out, desperate hopes for the safety of the five men on the plane began to fade and to be replaced by fears that the PN-9 number one, will be a naval cylops of the air.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—E. C. Yellowley, who had been previously assigned to take charge of prohibition work at San Francisco, was today selected by Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Andrews as prohibition administrator for the Chicago district.

Colonel Ned Green formerly in charge at Los Angeles, will be the prohibition administrator at San Francisco.

NAVAL BOARD BEGINS PROBE OF DIRIGIBLE DISASTER AT SCENE

"Lieutenant Hendley, ranking officer, commanded the men of the crew to keep silence and not to talk. The officers of the ship gave to me the utmost courtesy and were so humble in their grateful appreciation of the Red Cross looking after their welfare and the attention given by us to their dead comrades. The Kiwanis and Rotary Club, of Cambridge, escorted the surviving officers and men to Berwick hotel for dinner and to the station where they left for their homes on the evening train."

(signed) "Emma F. Lyon."
Twenty one of the survivors under command of Lieut. T. C. Hendley, were on their way today back to Lakehurst, N. J. The men left Cambridge on an early train last night.

Army officials today expressed great indignation over the tactics of the souvenir hunters who swarmed to the scene of the disaster Thursday. Scarcely had the wreckage settled to earth, it seemed, than the ruthless assault of souvenir collectors began.

Armed with knives, hatchets, wrenches, pliers and clubs, souvenir hunters ripped, tore, cut, twisted and hacked at the shattered corpse of the huge airship before Sheriff R. W. Shafer and 15 deputies reached the scene.

Huge strips of the outer silk fabric were torn away by men who exultantly claimed they sought the material for raincoats.
Long sections of the dirigibles aluminum girders were hauled away by hundreds of motorists. Others carried off field glasses, radio instruments, tools, watches, cables and almost anything they could move. The pistons from the wrecked engines were stolen.

Officers pointed out the depredations of the souvenir hunters would probably hamper the investigation of the disaster. Even official records, including the logbook, were reported missing today.

Clocks found in the wreckage were stopped at 5:35 a. m. indicating that was the hour of the disaster.

Numerous, and at times conflicting, versions of the Shenandoah's disaster were passed from mouth to mouth here today. Eye witnesses of the aerial tragedy were many and each one had a different story.

It was generally agreed that the Shenandoah was caught by a cyclonic squall, that, after it had got out of control, it dropped several thousand feet and hat, under the terrific strain the ship suddenly dropped apart. The rear end car hit the ground. The forward half drifted on for about ten miles.

Thirteen of the dead were crushed in the fall of the control car. Twelve were killed outright. They were horribly mangled. The thirteenth, Ma-chinist's Mate Celestino Mazucco, first class, was found unconscious. His skull was fractured and one eye gouged out by a beam. He died in a few minutes.

The last body to be found was that of Lieut. E. W. Sheppard. It was located some distance from the wreck of the main part of the ship. It, too, was badly mangled. Sheppard landed in a small creek. His hands in death still clutched a broken guy wire.

Chief Petty Officer Arthur Carlson was on watch when the crash came. "It was just lucky. That's all," Carlson said. "That's the only reason I am here today. I went on duty at 3 a. m. We were riding about 2500 feet high when we hit a storm. The ship suddenly got out of control. For ten minutes we were at the mercy of a small cyclone. No other wind could have phased the Shenandoah. Can you imagine how we felt?"

"Our engines were going full speed ahead with the nose headed straight down to the earth. But we kept going up and up, faster and faster. When we reached an altitude of 6500 feet, we began to fall. We dropped so rapidly for more than 3,000 feet that I had to hold on with all of my strength to keep from going down with the ship."

"The first thing we did then was to make the valves clear. This was followed by throwing off the water ballast and all the gasoline tanks. We dropped about 25,000 pounds of gas and water ballast. There wasn't much time for anything else. It all happened so quickly. I knew the men in the control car were doing all they could."

"After that 3,000 foot drop, the ship seemed to almost right itself. Then, it turned on its tail at a height of about 3,500 feet and crashed."

DR. WILKIN ATTENDS OPTOMETRISTS MEET

Dr. Carl E. Wilkin of the Wilkin and Wilkin optometric offices, this city attended a meeting of the optometrists of Zone Nine, at the American Legion Home, Dayton, Wednesday evening.

Zone Nine comprises the following counties: Montgomery, Greene, Darke, Champaign, Clark, Miami, Preble.

Following dinner, served at 6:30 o'clock, the speakers of the evening included Dr. H. Riley Spittler, secretary and Dr. E. O. Sterzer, vice-president of the association of optometrists, who discussed various phases of the work and were well received.

All members present expressed their intention of taking the post graduate work offered by the Ohio State University extension course.

ENDORSE EDUCATION BOARD CANDIDATES

J. J. Stout and Mrs. J. H. Benbow, candidates for membership on the Board of Education were endorsed by the Federated Parent-Teachers Association at a meeting at the home of Mrs. P. C. Bankard, North Detroit Street Tuesday.

Mr. Stout has been active in the work of the young people of the city and is one of the Boy Scout Masters. Mrs. Benbow is president of the Federated P. T. A.

EXPLORER'S SHIP FOUND DISABLED

London, Sept. 4 — The Island, the vessel in which Gretin Algerson sailed in from Liverpool on June 2 on an expedition to the Arctic regions, has been sighted partially disabled off Victoria land, according to an Oalo dispatch to the Central News today.

The propeller blade of "The Island" has been broken, the dispatch said, making her navigation almost impossible.

POWER BUILDING DESTROYED BY FIRE

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 4—Fire early today destroyed the four upper floors of the eight story Arrott Power Building number 2 in the downtown district here resulting in the injury of 5 firemen, the routing of a dozen families and entailing a loss in excess of $300,000.

Three firemen were slightly injured when a fire escape on which they were standing collapsed. Two others were cut by glass.

FAD OF COLLECTING.

SOMETIME or other in their lives every man or woman succumbs to the lure of collecting. Some make it their vocation, others their avocation. With some it is a business while others follow it as a pastime. It may be only a passing fad or a life-long custom.

One of the strangest collections was that made by a European chiropodist of the nail trimmings from the toes of royalty and great personages. The nail from the toe of a prince should not differ materially from that of a pauper, but this collector spent his life saving and classifying his pedicurings.

In every community there are collectors of antique furniture, postage stamps, old and rare coins, family heirlooms, old fashioned quilts and shawls, old books and many other things which lend themselves to collecting.

The collecting urge among the majority is probably the desire to build up a treasure of curios for display. Then there are many persons who expect some day to derive financial gain from their collections. But it can be said for most collectors that once they have gotten together a valuable array of the rare or antique they would as soon part with a very dear friend as their collection.

Let the efficiency "birds" and the practicalists chide the collector for his expenditure of time and money on the obsolete and the inutile. That which affords man recreation and surcease from the serious business of making a living is of inestimable value to mankind and such a thing is the collecting habit. It is to the amateur that our museums and libraries must turn for the old and rare.

PROFITING THROUGH SERVICE

WHEN merchants build new stores, add additional sales spaces, install new fixtures, improve their show window, augment their sales forces, replenish their stocks with the best and newest, it is for the public. Of course they are in business for the purpose of making a living, but to make that living they must first give service, so their first objective is always "to serve and please."

"Fair exchange is no robbery" is a business phrase which has been handed down from generation to generation and now seems to have acquired immortality. The laborer exchanges his labor for his wage. The capitalist exchanges his money for his interest. The manufacturer exchanges his products for his cost of production plus profit; the professional man exchanges his service for his fee or his salary; the store keeper exchanges his goods for cost plus service charge. Everybody is in business for himself by being in business for somebody else. Like the public official, the merchant is in business for society and therefore every member of that society is his employer, his boss.

One of the compensations of business is that public recognition and appreciation come to none sooner than to the business man who really serves. A flourishing trade is synonymous with public trust and confidence. Service must ever precede success in business.

LESSONS OF LIFE.

EVERY person should go to the cemetery at least twice in life. Once at the end of life, and first in earlier years, to reflect on the brevity of life and the insufficiency of worldly goods. There is no place like a quiet churchyard for meditation and there is room in every life for more serious thought.

The tombstones hold a moral for all living. There is inscribed the human virtues, but among the inscriptions there is no record of estates left behind, fortunes made and spent and worldly fame attained. The magnitude and sculpture of the stone or the vault alone remain to remind the world of "the boast of heraldry and the pomp of power."

Why should human beings worry and struggle through life's fleet span in pursuit of wealth, fame, luxuries, vanities and all those other evanescent things we choose to call riches? The poor are distressed by too little money, the moderately wealthy by the thought that others possess more wealth than they, and the rich by too much money.

The Garden of Paradise was paradise only so long as Adam and Eve entertained no pestering bank accounts, troublesome servants, expensive automobiles, business worries and social and fashion detractions in Paradise.

Few people have learned the secret of living well. Most of us measure contentment in terms of dollars and social position. The number is negligible which views life as a golden opportunity to work and think and be joyful.

Just Foks

BY EDWARD A. GUEST

THE DOCTOR MAKES A NINETY-EIGHT

Oh corrier, drive hard and fast, and bear the glad news.
Nor slow no stop for traffic cop, for fear the race you lose;
Go seek the place
That's known as Grace,
The hospital, I mean
And about the word
Of what's occurred
Upon the eighteenth green;
Go breathless to that little room
Where white-robed surgeons wait
And tell them that a brave M. D. has made a ninety-eight!
Go tell it to the surgeons cool, and tell the gentle nurse,

Tell interns, too, and patients who show signs of growing worse.
Tell one and all
Within the hall.
The relatives and friends,
From floor to floor
And door to door
Give out the word he sends.
The trick is turned, the art is learned,
no more he waits his fate
Another doctor stands with these who've made a ninety-eight!
Give out the news in English first,
and then in Latin phrase,
And if you speak the ancient Greek,
in Greek resound his praise;
At first they'll doubt
But be you stout
And flinch not when they sneer.
Let them regard
The doctor's card
And join his skill to cheer.
For few the surgeons who can shoot a golf ball far or straight,
And glad they'll be to honor him who's made a ninety-eight.

Some of the engineers out of Xenia are making some remarkably fast runs nowadays. One engineer on the flyer sixteen made the run between Xenia and Columbus in fifty-two minutes. It is getting to be no uncommon occurrence now for railroad men to make the trip at a mile a minute clip.

Mr. Arthur G. Whalen, who has been employed for some time with the night crew in the Pan Handle yards, has been given day work.

The illustrated industrial edition of the Gazette will be given wide circulation. Mr. A. H. Coleman of Chicago a descriptive newspaper writer, has been engaged by the paper for the edition.

Mr. George Graham who is attending commercial school in Cincinnati has arrived home for a week's vacation.

In response to a reader's request for a recipe for "Ice Box Cake" published some time ago, 16 housekeepers have kindly sent in their method of making this kind of cake. It will take a little time to publish all these recipes, but I shall do so gradually except in cases where they are almost identical. Here are a few:

L. M. J.: "Chocolate Ice Box Cake: Dissolve a half-pound cake of sweet chocolate in the top of a double boiler with two tablespoons of sugar and three tablespoons of water added. Flavor with one-half teaspoon of vanilla then add the yolks of five eggs and stir till it thickens. Now remove from fire, let cool, then add the five egg-whites stiffly whipped. Line a mold with waxed paper. Put in layer cake or sponge cake cut in thin pieces (or use split lady-fingers) then pour some of the chocolate mixture over this cake layer; add another layer of the cake, another of the chocolate, etc., etc., till all is gone, having a cake layer top. Slip the mold into your ice box overnight and next day serve, turned out of mold, topped with whipped cream."

M. A. G.: "Ice Box Cake with Nuts: Line a mold with waxed paper. Put one-half pound of sweet butter into a mixing bowl and cream into it two cups of powdered sugar, the juice and rind of one lemon, the yolks of four eggs and one and one-half cups of ground pecan nuts. Now fold in the stiffly beaten whites of the four eggs and spread half of this mixture on top of the first layer of lady fingers. Add another lady finger layer, then the remainder of the uncooked egg-sugar-mixture and top with a final layer of lady fingers. Place on ice for several hours to mould, then turn out onto a serving plate, remove waxed paper and serve with whipped cream."

A. S.: "Lemon-Orange Ice Box Cake: Cream one-half pound of sweet butter with one and one-half cups of granulated sugar for 20 minutes; then add four eggs (yolks and whites unseparated) and the grated rind and juice of the lemons and two oranges. Split three dozen lady fingers and line a mold with them. Put in some of the uncooked egg-sugar mixture, add another lady finger layer, and alternate these two layers till the egg mixture is used, having the cake layer come last. Let stand 24 hours in your ice box before serving, turned out of mold with whipped cream."

Today's Talks

POETRY

Perhaps no one can explain why it is that poetry so grips the mind. Perhaps it is because it forms a mode of expression that is so much in line with the way most of us think when we are inspired by something very beautiful.

Not all of us can write poetry. In fact but a comparative few can. But poetry seems to have been born in most of us.

For, after all, we are all children of Nature. And all Nature is poetry. The earth is a great poem. Each little stone encases a precious gem.

Burns stopped his plough and saw a poem in a tiny field mouse.

One of the grandest poems in all the Universe is in the heavens. And every time you silently look into the sparkling sky you may get a new interpretation.

I have sat for hours before a waterfall and watched the poems glisten in the sunlight and dance on the rocks below.

There is to all fine poetry, color, form, rhythm, and elusive beauty.

Recently I have gained such exquisite pleasure from the reading of the brief poems of Emily Dickinson. This simple, lovely girl died in New England about 40 years ago, and yet only of recent date has the world come to recognize in her a genius both rare and remarkable. To read her poems is like tasting nectar.

When I feel as though I need a tonic I read over and over that inspiring poem by Tennyson, his "Ulys. ses." And when I want something especially exquisite I read Rossetti's "Blessed Damozel." In the room where I sleep I have that beautiful poem by Tennyson: "Crossing The Bar." I like "Mary in Heaven" by Burns, and Poe's "Annabel Lee."

All great poetry is deathless. George Sand says: "Poetry is immortal like the breath of flowers and the splendor of heaven."

On my way to work I see countless poems strewn along the way.

Everything beautiful and lovable in people is a kind of choice poetry that bubbles from the heart. Kindness is poetry.

TWO FINED RESULT OF TRIANGLE TRIAL IN JUSTICE COURT

Two men were fined as the result of a three-cornered case before J. E. Jones, justice of the peace, Thursday, growing out of an alleged assault on Ralph Shelton, 1433 Epworth Street, Dayton.

The assault is said to have occurred Tuesday when J. C. O'Banion and his son, E. C. O'Banion, Stocker's Corner, near Bellbrook, said Shelton had run his automobile into a cow owned by them and being driven along the road by the elder O'Banion.

Shelton told Sheriff Morris Sharp, who made the arrest, that O'Banion Sr. accused him of hitting the cow and threw a rock at him. Shelton denied the machine struck the animal. Shortly afterward Shelton said, O'Banion, Jr., and Robert Keller, Hollywood Fla., who is visiting him, stopped his machine and O'Banion accused him of striking the cow.

Shelton said he returned with the pair, promising to make restitution, but that the O'Banions assaulted him. O'Banion Sr. was arrested first on Shelton's complaint and he promptly filed an affidavit charging E. C. O'Banion with assault also and all three cases were heard by the justice.

E. C. O'Banion was fined $25 and costs, J. C. O'Banion $10 and costs while the case against Shelton was dismissed and the costs assessed against the O'Banions. They paid.

BELLBROOK

The Shawen building was sold Thursday to Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Dinwiddie for $4,800.00.

It is reported that a new firm has been born in the village.

Wade Turner, of near Waynesville, spent a few days of the past week with his grandfather, J. S. Turner and his aunt and cousin, Mrs. Grace Ritenour and son, Turner Ritenour.

Bellbrook won the opening game of the three game series with Waynesville, at Earnhart's park Sunday by a score of 9 to 1. The second game of the series will be played on the Waynesville diamond Sunday afternoon, Sept. 6. The line-up for the home team was Herman, p; Spahr, c; Cramer, 1b; Zimmerman, 2b; Sackler, 3b; Crowe, ss; Hess, cf; Sidenstricker, lf; Vanderwood, rf.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Cross and children of Dayton, spent Saturday and Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Allen Davis Attorney Funkhouser and Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Racer, of Dayton, were in the village a short time on legal business last Wednesday.

Willis Marshall, of near New Burlington, paid the village a short visit, Friday.

A large force of carpenters, lathers and plasterers are now rushing the Jr. O. U. A. M. building to completion. Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Anthony spent Saturday and Sunday with their home folks Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Anthony and Mr. and Mrs. Darbyshire.

Three petitions have been filed with the Board of Elections for township clerk and treasurer, R. E. Pierce, Jesse Weaver and Howard Woods.

The Nail Keg Circle is much disturbed over their lack of knowledge concerning the future of the two buildings on the corner of Main and Franklin Streets.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Watson and children and Mrs. Mollie Thomas visited Mr. and Mrs. Harry McGinnis of Lytle and Dr. and Mrs. Hall of Waynesville Wednesday.

F. A. Wright, Lampton Smith and John Turner, Jr. have filed their petitions for members of the board of education.

Absalom Davis and Vernon Cross attended the State Fair on Wednesday.

The village fathers have installed a new water system on the public square.

Robert Plummer was taken to the county infirmary by trustees B. F. Thomas and Morris Williamson last Wednesday.

A Dayton family moved into the John H. Wright property this week. Some of the visitors in and near town for the past week were: Hon. George H. Thorne, Ted Walton, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Gay and children, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Rollins, Marjorie Garabel and Helen May Edwards, Robert Wade and family, Harry Turner, Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Bottles, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Luehrs and children, Glenn Edwards, Gene Engle, Wesley Smith, Charles Haines, Clarence McCray, James Manuel, Rev. Wayne Smith, Howard McClure and George Davis.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Underwood, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Graves Wednesday visited what is termed "Ohio's Greatest Mystic Wonder," near west Liberty, Ohio, commonly known as "Ohio Caverns."

The Home D. of A. team initiated a class at Waynesville last Wednesday night. The team was composed of Cora Davis, Walter Belt, John Davis Mrs. Shoemaker Luella Anthony Mrs. Villars, Lizzie Myers, Mattie Gregg, Sudie Grotfelter, A. E. Gregg, Pearl Davis, J. L. Myers, Mrs. Peterbaugh, Pearl Gibbons, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Matthews and Mrs. J. Dougherty.

BELIEVE UNCLE SAM INTERESTED IN CAMP

Chillicothe, O., Sept. 4—Local residents were of the opinion today that Uncle Sam has his eyes on Camp Sherman.

Two government officials, John G. Harlan of the department of justice and Ord Everman of the U. S. Veterans' Bureau, were here this week looking over the site of the cantonment.

It was reported they were sent here to fix a divisional line in the reserve setting off additional land for the development of the hospital on one hand and the location for a proposed federal reformatory for first offenders on the other.

Three programs for the disposition of Camp Sherman have been advanced at different times:

1. The government hospital, known as U. S. Veterans' Bureau Hospital No. 97, should take over the reservation for future developments and in time double its capacity and operations.

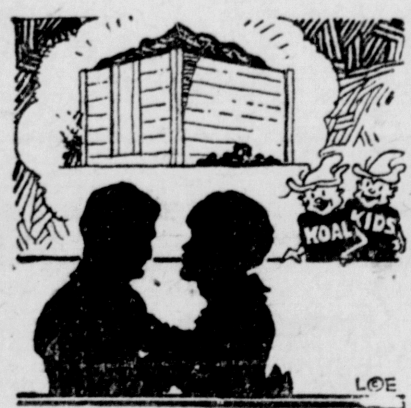

2. The government should locate a federal reformatory there for the care of first offenders.

3. The government should transfer the headquarters of the Fifth Corps Area to Camp Sherman, abandoning Fort Hayes at Columbus, O., and Fort Thomas at Covington, Ky.

FLAG RAISING

The K. K. K. will have a flag raising at Bellbrook Sunday afternoon at 2:30 central standard time. All Klansmen with robes requested to meet at Tabernacle in Xenia at 1 p. m., central standard time. Accompanied by the Band will proceed to the Bellbrook School Building for the ceremonies.

HELPS POLICE HUNT STOLEN MACHINES

Columbus, O., Sept. 4—Police and other authorities throughout Ohio are receiving material aid, through the operation of the recently inaugurated 24-hour day service at the state automobile registration department, in tracing stolen automobiles and apprehending criminals, Secretary of State Brown said today.

Establishment of this night bureau service by Secretary Brown placed Ohio among the few states which have this service. Calls for information at this night bureau are increasing from night to night, Brown said. Private citizens also are reporting accidents to this night bureau, the records disclosed.

Two attendants are on duty every night. One has the stretch from 5 p. m. until midnight. The other is on from midnight to 8 a. m. The day force is on duty from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m.

With automobile records at their finger tips, these night attendants furnish the police and sheriffs with the names and addresses of motorists figuring in accidents or crimes. Officials are thus enabled to make prompt investigations without waiting until next day.

HOBBIES OF THE GREAT AND NEAR GREAT AS TOLD BY NEWS WRITER

EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the thirtieth of a series of intimate sketches which reveal the national political figure as a "brother under the skin" to the man behind the plow, the white-collar worker or the day laborer. Others will follow.

SENATOR ROYAL S. COPELAND
Senator, physician, health authority publisher, carpenter, writer stationery engineer, unionist, horticulturist and farmer.

The labors and hobbies of Senator Royal S. Copeland (D., of N. Y.) run hand in hand. A biographer finds it difficult to draw a line between the avocations he follows for profit and those he labors upon for pleasure. In his meteoric career Copeland has administered to the health of the great American city, settled labor disputes as a volunteer arbitrator, built a two-story house with his own hands, published a newspaper and written millions of words of health advice for American newspapers. On top of that he's a union man and carries a union card. And he derives pleasure from every last one of them.

The Senator's principal hobby is farming. He owns a 130-acre farm at Suffern, N. Y., upon which he lives when away from Washington. He works at the old farm tasks with all the abandon of a real "dirt" farmer, but gets his greatest pleasure from maintaining a prime apple orchard. He planted many of the trees himself, but some of them are 150 years old, and he claims the Northern Spies Baldwins and pippins from his farm are as fine apples as any in America.

BORN ON FARM
"I was born on a farm," he explains. "I love a farm: I live on a farm, and I expect to die on a farm. I love the freedom and wholesomeness of country life."

Around his cottage home the Senator has created a garden of flowers. Just now a thousand peony blooms and an acre of lilies fill the air with fragrance. As Copeland says, "the air is redolent with the perfume of flowers."

Anyway, due to his garden, the Senator entertains some 5,000 visiting bees every day, attracted from miles around by the "perfume of his flowers."

On his farm Copeland also maintains a carpenter shop. He knows and can use some 300 tools. Some time ago he built a two story work shop with his own hands, doing all the manual labor. He does all the ordinary repair work about the farm and is a proficient carpenter.

"I have always loved tools," he says. "That's why I became a carpenter and a physician, too. You see I was attracted by the surgical instruments. And, after all surgery is only a refined form of carpentry."

MADE ENGINEER

As to his engineering status, Copeland won that distinction by the action of the engineers' union. They elected him to honorary membership when he settled one of their strikes to their advantage. His settling of strikes, incidentally has extended to other lines of effort, stationary firemen and construction workmen also heeding the lure of his arbitration. All this happened in 1919, while, as Health Commissioner of New York City he opposed threatened strikes because of the current influenza epidemic.

The record shows that Copeland settled the strikes by arbitration, and an unusual result was the fact that both employers and employees liked him better afterward.

"I'm a union man now," says Copeland. "That's why I only spoke eight hours on the Isle of Pines Treaty. Being a union man, I kept union hours."

Copeland is a real newspaperman.

He publishes the Nyack Daily News, of Nyack, N. Y., frequently writing editorials for the paper. Another of his hobbies, well known to millions of Americans, is his writing of a daily health editorial for American newspapers. These articles have a tremendous circulation, and Copeland receives responses from every part of the globe.

"Last month I had 20,000 letters from people who wrote to me about their health," he said. "It's tremendously interesting, and the most fascinating thing I do."

Among his readers are such men as Elbert H. Gary, president of the United States Steel Corporation, and E. F. Albee, president of the Keith Vaudeville Association. Both men have written to the Senator that they improved their health by following his newspaper directions. He treasures, however, a letter from a woman in Canada, who lived eighty miles from the nearest doctor, and sought medical advice from the Senator, who was some 2,000 miles away.

"I try to keep people well; not to cure them," he says. "I try to teach good living so as to avoid disease. I want to extend the span of life to 100 years."

A Friend -in the Basement

The Farquar System goes farther than any other furnace to make friends. It not only heats every room thoroughly, but does it with fresh air! It ventilates the home without flooding the rooms with dust, dirt, smoke, gases and fire poisons. Every room is evenly heated, no hot and cold spots and no drafts along the floor.

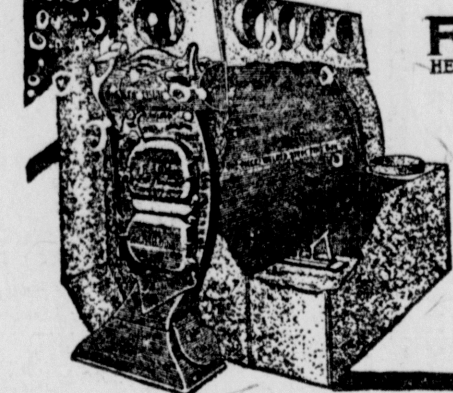

And if you should leave the furnace wide open after firing, the Automatic Control will close the doors and drafts and open the check, bringing the fire under complete control long before there's any danger from overheating.

Don't breathe stale, devitalized and contaminated air any longer. Let

PHIPPS CONVICTED ON CHICKEN THEFT CHARGE THURSDAY

Clay Phipps, ex-policeman, was convicted of burglary and larceny by a jury in Common Pleas Court late Thursday afternoon.

Phipps was convicted of stealing twenty-five chickens belonging to W. R. Farnsworth, near Bellbrook, June 18. A second indictment, which charges him with stealing ten chickens from Collins Turner, will probably not be brought to trial.

Fred Craig, said to be chief witness for the state in the grand jury investigation, is said to have told a different story on the stand at the trial but his testimony supporting Phipps' alibi failed to save the latter from conviction.

Attorneys H. C. Armstrong and Frank H. Dean were counsel for the defendant and Prosecutor Marshall handled the case for the state. The jury got the case shortly before 3 o'clock.

OPERATED REFUGE FOR CATS AND DOGS

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 4.—Hamilton County's dogdom and catdom were plunged in grief today. David Connors, 48, lover extra-ordinary of tramp dogs and alley cats was confined in Longview Hospital.

Connors was ordered to the asylum by Probate Judge William H. Lueders after neighbors had complained the Connors home had been turned into a mission for stray animals.

Sixteen dogs and sixteen cats were found by welfare workers at the Connors home.

"My motto has been 'A good home for every dog and cat,'" Connors explained to the court. "But caring for these animals has been awfully hard work. All the neighbors are against animal rescue work it seems to me."

Mrs. Connors explained to the judge that she was a stenographer and that if her husband was willing to do the rescue work, she was willing to support both him and the animals.

"Altruistic paranoia," agreed Drs. W. C. Kendrick and Robert Ingram, after examining Connors.

WEATHER PREVENTS NEW EDERLE ATTEMPT

Cape Gris Nez, France, Sept. 4.—Unfavorable weather made it improbable that Miss Gertrude Ederle, American girl swimming champion would swim the channel today as she had planned.

If unable to get away today Miss Ederle may abandon her plans for another swim, or she may decide to remain for another week, hoping against hope that the channel weather will belie all forecasting and give her one more opportunity to attempt conquest, before returning to the United States.

MICHAEL'S MARRIAGE

By MICHAEL

CHAPTER 140.
It seemed like old times. All of the old gang were there: Alicia Early and Bob Wentworth, Abe Mallory, Jimmy Thynne, Carmelita Lallier, who was now Peter Proston's bride of a year, Lilah momentarily forgot Michael as she looked around her at Bertha's.

"Where's Michael?" Of course Bertha asked that, the very first thing, without waiting, for an explanation.

"He has a headache, and he worked so hard today that I just didn't have the heart to drag him along. He's sorry." Once Lilah would have hated to lie like this, but she was getting used to it now.

The "old gang" was there all right, but somehow she didn't feel a part of it. She hesitated about joining the laughing, giggling group over which Jimmy Thynne was presiding in a corner. She wondered if Jimmy still told the same old stories. Abe Mallory came within her range of vision. Abe, her former Romeo, she thought of Michael. Undoubtedly her husband was the better man, but still Abe possessed certain qualities that Michael lacked. She wondered if Abe would have not been a more liberal-minded husband. Perhaps so, but then Abe would have expected her to be much more liberal minded. About Claude Horner, for instance. She frowned. She noticed that Abe was getting latter.

Bertha motioned to her from across the room. She responded and met Peter, the great Peter, and Carmelita. The women kissed. "Why Lilah Pharely! I hardly knew you!" "And Carmelita! Broadway is certainly agreeing with you!" With one of those fractional glances in which one woman can completely assay another, she noted the rouge-clogged pores of Carmelita's prematurely old face, Carmelita's increasing weight, Carmelita's nicotine-stained fingers. One year's gifts to Carmelita.

Peter greeted her in his best stage manner. One expected to hear him say, with one eye on a blonde in the first row, "Won't you sit down?" Peter, too, had hanged. Peter had a temperamental, and white spats now. "I hear you're going to oust Valentino and Meighan from the throne of Hollywood," she said. Peter smiled grandly, and ventured, "Ah, no! It's Buster Keaton's crown I'm after."

All those who heard him laughed shrilly. How proud they were that they knew, and were standing in the presence of Peter. Why, Peter would surely be a big motion picture star in a few months, and they'd be showing his pictures down at Strand! The girls looked at him with adoring eyes; the men glances.

Lilah found herself by the side of Katherine Capper. "Where's that sour old husband of yours?" Katherine asked. Lilah lied again.

"Isn't Carmelita getting fat?" Katherine whispered. They smiled at each other. Once Carmelita had been a close friend of both of them.

"I always thought that up-pish little chin of hers would become twins or triplets," Katherine laughed. "She's just the type that gets fat. She'll weigh 200 when she's forty. She won't be darling Peter's then."

Peter, now completely surrounded by an admiring group of women which didn't include his wife, yielded at last to persuasion and consented to give a "dramatic reading."

"From one of your plays, Peter," the girls said, ecstatically. Peter cleared his throat and began Hamlet's soliloquy. Peter had never played in Shakespeare, but he thought he would make a good Hamlet.

Katherine and Lilah drifted away from Peter's adorning circle. One of the Carmelita girls joined them. Lilah had invited both of the Carmelita girls to her tea, not because she particularly cared for them. She was glad they didn't accept, but piqued because they didn't. She was afraid they intended their absence to be a snub.

"Is Helen Hunley going to your dinner, Lilah?" the newcomer asked blandly. Lilah started. What was she to say. It was a crisis.

AUGUST FAILED TO BREAK TEMPERATURE RECORDS IN SPITE OF EXTREME WEATHER

Temperature during August reached a maximum of 91 degrees on August 17 and again on August 29, according to the monthly meteorological summary of W. W. Neifert, Dayton weather observer.

Temperature was lowest during the month on August 23, when it dropped to 52 degrees. The mean highest temperature for the month was 84.5 degrees and the mean lowest temperature was 62.4 degrees while the mean temperature for the month was 73.4 degrees. The highest temperature recorded in August since 1883 was 103 degrees and the lowest 40 degrees.

Precipitation during the month was 2.49 degrees, the greatest in any one day being 0.73 on August 18. The normal for the month is 3.01, representing a deficiency of 0.52 which makes the accumulated precipitation deficiency since the first of the year 6.64.

There were seventeen clear days, twelve partly cloudy days, two cloudy days, and nine days on which .01 or more inches of precipitation occurred. The number of hours of actual sunshine was 306.6 out of a possible 425.1, a percentage of 72. There was hail on August 5, a dense fog on August 14 and thunderstorms on August 2, 3, 5, 8, 10, 11, 12, 13, 18 and 31.

WANT A GROUND HOG? IT'S NOT HAMBURGER

Columbus, O., Sept. 4.—Do you want a nice little ground hog for a pet? You can have one here for the asking.

J. E. Burke, a local geologist, brought a 7-pound ground hog back home with him from his latest field trip. Burke said he caught the animal with his hands in Hocking County. He claims the animal isn't at all dangerous, and to prove it, he carries it around in his arms.

Lacking a suitable place to keep the ground hog, Mr. Burke has offered to give the animal as a pet to anyone who can keep him. Mr. Burke's address is 3516 North High Street.

Names are Big Red ($5.00 to $7.00), Big Black ($5.00 to $7.00), Hoot nanny ($5.00), Big Brother ($3.50 to $4.00).

The Government's Right!

All government reports state very firmly that there are two ways NOT to get bit by a mosquito! The first and most recommended method is to go where the mosquitos AIN'T while the second is to wear thick, heavy wool socks, mittens and a baseball mask. If Uncle Sam ever hears of Skeeter Scoot at 25c a can, he'll sure bite his nails!

Spice, Saccharin and Pickling Season!

A union of an age old institution and a truly modern innovation. Your spices of today come to you with a romantic, historical background dating back way past the time of David when spices of parian lands occupied first place as an article of commerce and trade. Saccharin, man-made sweetener has a short history but one equally interesting. It's 500 times sweeter than sugar! These two coupled with watermelon rinds, cucumbers, tomatoes and such, and mingled by a thoughtful housewife, make condiments surpassing any on the board of Lucullus! And this is pickling season!

We Believe This To Be True!

It is generally believed by those who muss up their minds with such abstract conjectures that Wimmen Dress for Men and that Men Dress for Wimmen. In other words, if all the men folks in THIS world were segregated on Mars for a couple of years they would come back and find the Hubigants, Coty, Armands and Oniteel factories out of business because the wimmen quit buying.

As again this, if the wimmen took the Mars trip, they'd come back to find a world full of tobacco-chewing, hair-faced, suspended males, 40 percent of them fishing ten days a week.

As this is possibly NOT going to happen during this month or next and we have a store full of beautifiers, enough for every woman in town, I can't for the life of me understand my getting off the subject like I did at the front of this article.

town that would be great buddies if their style wasn't cramped so by the wimmen in their families.

I hope Doc doesn't read this about the wimmen because they sure are good customers of his.

Doc is sure irritating bringing up a beautiful thought like that and then ending up by saying it's not going to happen! So far as I can see from here and strict investigation, I wrote the darned piece up above merely to SELL beautifiers! Some one ought to blow out his candle and hide his rubbers for pulling junk like that!

Gosh, boy, I sure would have a flock of playmates if the lady folks would dust on up to Mars! I know plenty chaps here in
